

Key Business Insights

Workforce Composition

The organization has a total workforce of 792 employees, of which 691 (87%) are active employees and 101 (13%) are inactive employees, indicating a stable workforce with a high active employee ratio.

Engineering Dominates the Workforce

The Engineering Department is the largest department with 445 employees, accounting for more than half of the organization's workforce, highlighting the company's strong technical and product development focus.

R&D and Manufacturing Drive Operations

Among business units, R&D (223 employees) and Manufacturing (221 employees) have the highest employee counts, demonstrating significant investment in innovation and production capabilities.

Prime Working-Age Workforce

The largest employee group falls within the 36–40 age range (196 employees), followed by 41–45 years (158 employees), indicating a workforce with substantial professional experience.

Balanced Gender Representation

The workforce shows relatively balanced gender participation across age groups and departments, supporting diversity and inclusion within the organization.

High-Value Talent Retention

The top 10 highest-paid employees earn between $1.39M and $1.41M annually, reflecting the organization's investment in experienced and high-performing talent.

Employee Exits Concentrated in Mid-Career Groups

The highest number of employees exits occurs within the 26–30 and 36–40 age groups, suggesting potential opportunities to strengthen retention strategies for early and mid-career professionals.

Long-Term Employee Commitment

Several departments show average employee service durations exceeding 3 years, indicating strong employee retention and organizational stability across key business functions.